OVERVIEW

Journey overview

The trek from Chandragiri to Chitlang and Markhu is a stunning journey. The path takes you through serene jungles and picturesque villages on a quiet, rarely-used road. Remember to bring sunscreen, as there's little shade along the route, and we learned this the hard way with a sunburn. This trek is a fantastic way to experience Nepali village life, with locals known for their vegetable farming and goat herding. Overall, it's an easy and enjoyable hike, perfect for families and beginners. If you're looking for a short and easy trek near Kathmandu, this trek is ideal for you. Plus, it's accessible year-round.

Frequently asked questions

How difficult is the Chitlang and Markhu Valley Trek?

The trek is generally easy and suitable for beginners, families, and travelers with average fitness. The trails include gentle uphill and downhill sections, but no technical climbing or high-altitude trekking is required.

How many days does the Chitlang and Markhu Valley Trek take?

The standard itinerary takes 3 days. It includes the journey from Kathmandu to Chandragiri and Chitlang, walking to Markhu Village, a hike to Mohani Jharna, and the return to Kathmandu.

What is the best time to do the Chitlang and Markhu Valley Trek?

The trek can be enjoyed throughout the year. Spring and autumn generally offer pleasant walking conditions and clear scenery, while the monsoon season brings greener landscapes but can make trails wetter.

What can I experience during the trek?

You can enjoy peaceful forest trails, terraced farmland, traditional villages, local farming practices, scenic Markhu and Kulekhani landscapes, and the beautiful Mohani Jharna waterfall. It is also a great opportunity to experience authentic rural life close to Kathmandu.

Is the Chitlang and Markhu Valley Trek suitable for families?

Yes. The trek is a good choice for families and beginners because of its relatively short duration, manageable walking trails, and easy access from Kathmandu. Children should, however, be comfortable with several hours of walking each day.
